Where can I find a steel supplier in Brazil?

If your project needs Brazilian steel, you can refer to the following steel suppliers and manufacturers in Brazil. Gerdau is Brazil's largest steel producer and is in a leading position in the world's steel industry. It has factories in Brazil and many South American countries.

Why should you choose a Brazilian steel supplier?

In the rapidly developing Brazilian steel industry, the equipment utilization rate of steel production enterprises is continuously improving, and Brazil will occupy more export share in the international market. If your project needs Brazilian steel, you can refer to the following steel suppliers and manufacturers in Brazil.

What kind of steel does Swiss Steel Brasil supply?

We can supply the full range of tool steels (hot work, cold work, plastic mold, and high-speed steel) in round and block formats. The steels supplied by Swiss Steel Brasil are manufactured in our group's mills: Deutsche Edelstahlwerke, Finkl, Steeltec, and Ugitech. This supply chain allows us to ensure the highest product quality for our customers.

Why is the Brazilian steel industry growing?

The Brazilian steel industry is developing continuously, and the increase in demand has stimulated the rapid development of the Brazilian steel industry. Many steel suppliers are emerging, and our company has learned from Brazilian customers that there is a lot of demand for steel from Brazilian steel supplier manufacturers.

What steels are used for hot forming?

Tools for hot forming processes require fracture resistance, hot wear resistance and resistance to thermal fatigue. Tempered 3% and 5% CrMoV steels with a hardness of approximately 35 to 55 HRC fulfil these requirements perfectly. Particularly highly stressed tool inserts are also manufactured from maraging steels of the type Fe-18% Ni-Co-Mo-Ti.

How hard is a hot forming tool?

Hardness values of 50 to over 64 HRC are achieved by hardening and tempering the tool components. Tools for hot forming processes require fracture resistance, hot wear resistance and resistance to thermal fatigue.
