Why does China have a power supply crisis?

China is used to seeing power supply cuts in parts of the country each year, but their frequency has increased sharply since the second half of 2020, escalating to a crisis in September 2021. Potential causes include Beijing-dictated carbon reduction targets to lower emissions, and an urgent shortage of coal.

How many electrochemical storage stations are there in China?

In terms of developments in China, 19 members of the National Power Safety Production Committee operated a total of 472 electrochemical storage stations as of the end of 2022, with a total stored energy of 14.1GWh, a year-on-year increase of 127%.

Why are China's energy storage stations so low?

However, the scale of new independent energy storage stations put into operation in China in the first three quarters of 2022 was approximately 345.5MW, which was significantly lower than planned or under construction stations. The main reason for this may be that investors lack motivation.

Why did southern China's HVDC lines overpower its AC grid?

Southern China's big HVDC lines overpowered its AC grid partly due to its thyristor-based converters, which require voltage support from the AC grid. CSG expects future HVDC projects to make greater use of newer, transistor-based voltage-source converters (VSCs), which manage their own voltage.
