Vietnamese authorities are looking to retroactively revise purchase prices for 173 solar and wind projects, reducing revenues by 25% to 46%, risking bankruptcies across the renewable energy sector, and jeopardizing investor confidence needed to meet the government's 2030 targets of 73 gigawatts.

With rising electricity costs, grid unreliability in rural zones, and increasing rooftop solar adoption, both homeowners and businesses are turning to solar battery storage to ensure 24/7 energy independence, cost savings, and long-term sustainability. From individual homes in Đà Nẵng to factories.

Many startups are counting on home-grown battery technologies to harness Vietnam's abundant renewable energy resources as they hold out for more robust incentives. Under the landmark power strategy, Vietnam targets a total capacity of at least 2,700 MW and 30,650 MW for pumped storage hydropower.

This series aims to explore future trends in the renewable energy market across the region and provide key priorities for renewable energy buyers. Southeast Asia continues to gain ground in renewable energy development, and 2025 is shaping up to be a pivotal year—especially for Vietnam. Following. Could Vietnam replace fixed feed-in tariffs with standardized auctions?

As global costs for solar, wind, and battery storage systems fall, Vietnam could replace fixed feed-in tariffs (FiTs) with standardized competitive auctions to procure clean energy at the lowest cost.

How can a new LNG-to-power project protect Vietnam from global fuel price volatility?

Prioritizing domestic renewables and grid resilience over new LNG-to-power projects can shield Vietnam from global fuel price and exchange rate volatility while still meeting demand growth. Vietnam stands at an inflection point.
