

Residential ESS project financing options in Ireland 2026

Overview

Why should Ireland Invest in housing in 2026?

2026 offers Ireland an opportunity to make changes that can help to direct the future course of our country. Nowhere is this need for action more evident than with respect to housing. Since the global financial crisis, the continuing chronic undersupply and which also potentially imperils our future prosperity.

How will budget 2026 impact Ireland's financial services?

Budget 2026 therefore presents an important opportunity for the Government to cement this reputation by introducing a range of tax measures to both enhance and simplify Ireland's current financial services offering. Set out below are sectoral specific observations.

What is Ireland's biggest infrastructure investment plan in 2035?

Ireland announces record €275.4bn infrastructure investment plan to 2035. Updated National Development Plan targets housing, transport, and energy with largest capital investment in State's history.

How much money will Ireland spend on public services in 2035?

€102 – 112 billion will be allocated for public services up to 2030 and at least a further €100bn from 2030 to 2035. This is the largest ever capital investment plan in the history of the Irish State and this ambitious infrastructure package includes spending on transport, climate action, health, and education and most importantly, housing.

What will PwC Ireland do in budget 2026?

They also align with PwC's guiding vision of building trust in society and solving important problems such as home ownership, encouraging enterprise and stimulating sustainable, fair and broad-based economic growth. Below are some of the key measures PwC Ireland would like to see implemented in Budget 2026.

Should Ireland invest €112 billion in social housing?

With the announcement of these NDP revisions, Ireland is entering a once-in-a-generation phase of infrastructure spending. I strongly believe that the announcement to invest €112 billion in 5 years should be an opportunity to reimagine how we build social housing, not just how much we spend on it.
